DATA OBTAINED FROM: James P.'s autobiographical narrative; family records; and Paddock, Capt. B.B. (ed.) A 20th Century History and Biographical Record of North and West Texas Vol. 2, Lewis Publishing Co., 1906, Chicago. In which on page 677, right hand column, top paragraph, James P. is listed with his siblings and his father shown as Nathan (Nathaniel Taylor McNabb) McNabb, and also on page 677, right hand column, entire second paragraph devoted to a narrative of James P. McNabb's "various removals" with his wife and children listed by name. In the narrative, James P. talks of his older brother being a "millwright". In the 1850 Bradley City Tenn Census on page 343, line 42 & page 344 lines 1-6, James P. is listed with his family and then on lines 11-19, Alfred W. McNabb is listed with his family and with his occupation as a "millwright". On line 19, with Alfred W.'s family, is shown Ellender McNabb age 66, who was the mother of Alfred W. age 41, and James P. age 36, in 1850. In the 1840 Bradley City Tenn Census on page 53, Alfred W. McNabb is shown on line 4 and James P. McNabb is shown on line 6. 1850 Census data shown above. 1860 Fannin City Texas Census, Bonham PO, page 260 reverse line 33-39 and on page 261 lines 1,2,&3, James P. McNabb is shown with his family listed by name. In the 1870 Webster City Missouri Census, of Washington Tnshp, Sand Springs PO, page 1,348, line 6-12, James P. is shown with his family listed by name, and he is shown as blind. (He became blind in the early 1860's, which caused his return to Missouri to be near his son Albert H., who came to Texas and helped the family to move back to Mo.) In the 1880 Webster City Missouri Census, Grant Tnshp, p17A ED 136, page 18, lines 43-46, James P. is shown with his wife Easter and his married daughter, Mary E. Thomas and her 3 year old daughter. No name is shown for Mary's husband. // James P. moved from Carter City, Tenn, before 1835, to Bradley City, Tenn; then in 1851 to Webster City, Missouri; then in 1858 to Fannin City, Texas; then in 1860 to Cooke City, Texas (Marysville); then in 1867 returned to Webster City, Missouri. Member of the Methodist Church.
