Re entry in Rēvolutionary Army Accounts, Volume I, Page 2, Folio 2.

Babtis McNabb was issued a voucher or specie certificate for some unspecified good or service performed by him during the Revolutionary War in the amount of 21 pounds, 12 shillings. These vouchers were issued by the state in lieu of cash to finance the war and were negotiable and interest bearing. McNabb used his voucher to pay the entry fees on a land grant in what is now eastern Tennessee. John Armstrong, entry taker for western lands, received McNabb's voucher and turned it in to the State Comptroller's Office. Edmund Williams and Landon Carter were auditors for the counties of Washington and Sullivan (now Tennessee) who originally issued the voucher to McNabb.
