GREER COUNTY.

Because of an error of one degree in a survey made by United States government surveyors in 1852, which made the one hundredth meridian pass north through the confluence of the North Fork and Red rivers, Texas, the Lone Star state laid claim to the territory between these two rivers and its ownership was undisputed for forty years. From 1852 until 1870 the province of Greer was little more than a happy hunting ground for the Kiowas and Comanches, but in 1870 white men, in defiance of Indian hostility, began to filter into the interior in pursuit of the last remnants of the great herds of bison. About 1880 the cattlemen came over the border and the Kiowa, Comanche and buffalo moved westward. In August, 1886, the country was organized as a Texas county and christened with the name of Greer, in honor of the lieutenant-governor of Texas.

When congress passed the Organic Act in 1890 organizing the Territory of Oklahoma, it authorized proceedings against Texas for the possession of Greer County, and in March, 1896, the United States supreme court decided the land belonged to the Territory of Oklahoma, opening the land to homestead entry in 1897. A flood of immigrants came up from Texas and one of the last great American frontiers was no more. Greer County has undergone three major surgical operations, having the Jackson County appendage and the Beckham County wing severed by the Constitutional Convention in 1907 and Harmon County lopped off in 1910. Fertile lands and a comparatively level surface make the county ideal for agricultural purposes, three lines of railroad, the Wichita Falls & Northwestern, the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific furnish excellent transportation facilities, and twelve hundred miles of highways reach all the remoter sections of the county and bring them within easy reach of the railways and the markets. More than six hundred miles of telephone lines make communication between all parts of the county relatively easy. As Oklahoma counties go, Greer is not a large county, its area in acres being four hundred and twelve thousand, one hundred and sixty, and its population at the time of the federal census in 1920, fifteen thousand, six hundred and sixty. Outside of the county seat, Mangum, there is practically no manufacturing of any description.

WARREN GILBERT McNeill was born in Greer County in 22 Jan. 1898. Parents: Walter Scott & Bertha M. McNeill who left Greer County to file on land in Haysford Cty., Texas in 1899 to move there in late 1900 after Viola Craig McNeill was born Feb. 12, 1900, in Stephens Cty., Texas. 557

NOW WE KNOW ABOUT BABTISTE, by Walter Craig Davidson,
OR BABTIST, OR BABTIS, etc.

I quote from page 146 of the HISTORY OF THE KUYKENDALL FAMILY, by George Benson Kuykendall, M.D., Kilham Co., Portland, Oregon, 1919, as follows:

"The Van Auken family, who lived in the Machackemeck section of the Minisink country, and across the Delaware below in Pennsylvania, came from Marinus Van Aken and Piaternella des Prez. The name Van Auken looks in the present form to be Dutch, but is most surely of French origin. It came from the old city of Aachen in France, commonly called Aux la Chapelle, from where the ancestors of the family came. The Dutch Van must have been substituted for the French equivalent, after the family went to the Esopus settlements, where the inhabitants all spoke Dutch....The Van Aukens were prominent people in the valley of the Hudson and Delaware."

HUMAN MIGRATORY CIRCUMSTANCES AND PATTERNS:

My wife, Doris Louise Buckner Davidson is a direct descendant of 'The Immigrant' John Buckner and his wife, Deborah Ferrers, who married on 10 July 1661, in Buckinghamshire, England. They arrived in Virginia prior to 4 July 1665. The direct lineage is; John¹ Richard², John³, John⁴, John⁵, James A., Stephen M., Emmett, and Eugene Buckner, her father. John Buckner¹ died 10 Feb 1695 in Essex Co. Virginia. He descended from Rychard Buckner, 1493-1548, who lived in Cumnor, Berkshire, England. Rychard descended from Robert Bucknore(Buckner) of London who died in 1365. AND by the time of the Revolution, they were in Western North Carolina.

Doris Louise Buckner Davidson is also a direct descendant of 'The Immigrant' Jacob Luursen Kuykendall and his wife, Styntje Douwes who married on the 16th of August 1638 in Amsterdam, Holland and came to the Hudson River Valley in 1640, on the ship 'Princess' owned by the East Indian Shipping Co., of Holland. The direct lineage is: Jacob Luursen; Luur Jacobsen; Cornelius; Abraham, a Captain in the Revolutionary War; Jacob; Jacob Richmond; and Louisa Jane Kuykendall who married Stephen Morgan Buckner. Then Emmett, son of Stephen Morgan and Louisa Jane; then Eugene, son of Emmett, then Doris Louise, dau of Eugene Buckner and his wife, Virginia Ella Weddle. And by the time of the Revolution, they too were in Western North Carolina.

My mother, Viola Craig McNabb Davidson, 12 Feb 1900-12 Feb 1996 was a direct descendant of James Micknab (McNabb) who sailed from Downes, England, 8 December 1651, on the "John & Sarah"--Master John Greene--and landed in Boston, Mass., before 24 February 1652 and went to work for the Lynn Iron Works. The direct lineage is; James; William,Sr.; William, Jr.; Babtist²; David; Nathaniel T.; James P.; Nathaniel A.; Walter Scott McNabb who married Bertie Sophia McNeill and were the parents of Viola Craig McNabb. Yes, by the time of the Revolution, the McNabbs were in Western North Carolina; HOWEVER, before they drifted down the Alleghenies to the Blue Ridge, they were in the Minisink country of Monroe County, Penn. where William McNabb,Sr., was a blacksmith and his son, William McNabb, Jr., was married to Betty Aiken whose father was probably Gideon Van Aken, a member of a well known French family of the Delaware River Valley. There is a record of the marriage of Niclaes Westvaal to Sara Van Aken on 20 October 1712 at Kingston. Possibly a sister of Betty Aiken, whose name, I believe, was not "Betty" but Elizabeth Van Aken, with "Betty" being the familiar form of the proper name Elizabeth. Thus, when Wm. McNabb, Jr., married Elizabeth Van Aken ca. 1720, it would not be outside the Dutch naming pattern for them to name their first born son, Babtist, a French name in honor of a French grandfather. The connection established by this marriage and birth, is of no small import. For the first time in some 48 years of McNabb family research, there is now a link between William the father and Babtist the son. Before now the only established link was based on rumor, habit and an absolute void when it came to written, documented evidence.The Draper files established a documented relationship between William and his son, James, but even the numerous references to Babtist McNabb contained in Lyman Chalkley's official records, fail to mention any, and I mean, any, relationship between William and Babtist. ALSO, we can now put to rest, the endless verbal expressions of bafflement as to the origin of what appeared to be a name connected with a religious body.

Of further importance, this linkage opens a whole new geographical area for McNabb family research. Containing, as it does, the legal and religious records dating back to the early 1600's, perhaps we can more fully and completely document the Clan members and activities.

For the Kuykendalls, the Van Akens and the MCNABBS, the melting pot syndrome that is the essence of America, began exceedingly early.

 I believe the prepondance of evidence indicates that, as stated in an earlier essay, Babtist had no son named William, thus the William McNabb who witnessed Babtist's will was most certain to have been Babtist's father.
